The Dish of Pueblo: the online home for Pueblo's food safety

The Food Safety Program at the Pueblo City-County Health Department announced its newest public resource, The Dish of Pueblo. The Dish of Pueblo is an online resource for the public and food industry designed to provide information about local restaurants, encourage safe food handling and open lines of communication between all parties.

The Dish of Pueblo is available in two forms, a primary Facebook page, which will act as the online community hub for interaction and discussion. Second, The Dish of Pueblo webpage includes expanded program information and updates detailing news in food safety. This online resource continues the tradition of interaction between industry, government and the public. Pueblo City-County Health Department recognizes the interest of the community to learn more about local restaurants and food safety and is confident The Dish of Pueblo will provide the information desired.
