Outpatient Treatment

Outpatient Treatment: Less than 9 hours a week of treatment per week for adults and less than 6 hours for adolescents. Typically in a variety of modalities (group therapy, individual therapy, and family therapy) to meet the individual's needs. Services are provided in an office setting where individuals can maintain work and home obligation in addition to their treatment.

Intensive Outpatient: 9 hours or more a week of treatment for adults and 6 hours or more a week for adolescents. This treatment frequency typically includes a variety of service modalities that are capable of meeting the complex needs of individuals. These services are also provided in an office setting allowing individuals to maintain employment and home requirements and often meet several days a week to provide daily support.

Withdrawal Management

Withdrawal Management (Social Detox): Provides a structured residential setting with 24/7 staff support and monitoring for individuals to maintain abstinence to allow substances to be processed through the body. Typically not staffed with medical personnel and only initial treatment services are provided at this level of stabilization.

Medically Managed Withdrawal Management (Medical Detox): Structured inpatient setting with medical personnel to provide assessment, medical intervention, and treatment as needed. 24/7 staffing typically includes nursing personnel. Commonly utilized for detoxification of individuals with complex medical needs or who are withdrawing from substances that are known to have potentially lethal withdrawals (alcohol, and benzodiazepines).

Residential Treatment

Clinically Managed Low-Intensity Residential: 24 hour living support and structure with available trained personnel, offers at least 4 hours a week of clinical services. Often individuals are allowed to leave the program during the day to pursue work or educational ventures. Often used as a step down from more intensive levels

Clinically Managed Medium-Intensity Residential: 24 hour living support and structure with available trained personnel, offers at least 10 hours a week of clinical services. This level of treatment is able to provide a range of services to address both substance use and mental health needs, with low level medical services.

Medically Managed High-Intensity Residential: Is specialized treatment with an emphasis on treatment of sub-acute medical, mental health, and withdrawal needs. This treatment is staffed with nursing personnel 24-hours a day and regular evaluation of medical and psychiatric stabilization.
